Even meteorologists long for summer vacations

BY JIM BISSETT
JBissett@DominionPost.com

Depending on what hour of what day he hits Philadelphia, it's a nearly five-hour drive from Paul Pastelok's house in Centre County, Pa., to Wildwood, N.J.

Either way, said Pastelok, a meteorologist who does long-range forecasting for AccuWeather, he's ready to fire up the family ride for the journey.

Or, rather, his kids are ready for Dad to fire up the family ride for the journey.

The oceanfront resort town in the Garden State is the favorite vacation spot for the family. Every year, they go.

Well, except for last year.

And after that 2020 summer of COVID-19, backyard isolation, Pastelok allowed he might be sharing in the enthusiasm of his progeny after all.

"It'll be good to get away," he said.

Just like every vacation, though, the weather will get the last word.

At the height of the pandemic last summer, there were still those occasionally lethal 110-degree days in Phoenix, one right after the other.

And that devastating spate of wildfires

in Colorado then, that scorched thousands of acres of old-growth forests.

North-central West Virginia sojourners, save for the road trip-hearty who venture past the other side of the Mississippi, trend toward Myrtle Beach for their sand and surf.

For many, that trip to the Palmetto State is the definition and embodiment of summer — which, coincidentally, begins at 11:32 p.m. EDT June 20 — the waning day of the Mountain State's 158th birthday.

Besides the pandemic, the climes last summer over the Atlantic and its neighboring waters were tumultuous, Pastelok said. Air masses and currents, along the Gulf Coast, in particular, spawned a record-setting 30 tropical systems, all named, and 11 of which made landfall.

Typically, a U.S. season might generate 14 named storms, with three or four gathering enough strength to make landfall.

Pastelok, meanwhile, wonders if a named storm could hit as early as June, perhaps in South Texas or Mexico. There's always a chance of tornadoes, he said.

For summer revelers staying home in West Virginia for camping and say, an outing on the river, June will come in quite nicely, Pastelok said.

Expect the usual bouts of unseasonably cool weather in July, he said, followed by the requisite thunderstorms through August.

"Our biggest concern is what may be coming in through the Ohio Valley," he said, citing that portal from the Midwest and the weather patterns that made their presence known during the warmer months.

Wherever you go, he said, just heed the weather forecasts — especially weather warnings, which means something definitely is on the way, opposed to conditions that could generate a downpour or tornado.

One thing Pastelok can predict with 100% certainty, he said, is that his aforementioned kids will get bored after a day or so in the sands of Wildwood.

"Then we'll have to go into town."

Mon County 4-H has this summer covered

Newsroom@DominionPost.com

Missing 4-H camp this summer or new to the program and wanting to learn more about what it is?

Join us for our camp-themed fun events June 13 at 4-H Camp Muffly. Kindergarten through 2nd graders are invited to take part in the Cloverbud Camp Day event from 2-4 p.m. and 3rd-6th graders are invited to attend the Amped for Camp event from 6-8 p.m.

These two camp-inspired events will feature a lot of camp activities, including crafts, STEM and snacks. Space will be limited to 24 participants at each event, due to COVID-19 regulations, so do not delay in registering. The cost is $10 per participant. Masks are required and those participating are required to complete the COVID-19 WVU Extension waiver, as well as the other required forms.

Those who register will be invoiced the $10 and will not be considered registered until that fee is collected.

Scholarships are available.

If WVU Extension limits in-person activities, this session may be postponed or activity bags may be distributed in place of the in-person activity.

Monongalia County 4-H Jackson's Mill Pod

The sun is out, the days are longer and 4-H is excited to offer limited face-to-face programming this summer. Jackson's Mill will allow pod camping for all 4-H participants. A plan to offer a brief overnight pod camping experience was developed under the guidance of the CDC and ACA Field Guide for Camps and was approved by the West Virginia University Health and Safety COVID-19 Task Force.

Monongalia County 4-H members will take a trip to Jackson's Mill July 14-16. Campers are responsible for their own transportation. Cost for a 4-H member is $135.

Over the three days participants will be outside at Jackson's Mill for recreation such as hiking, fishing, tomahawk/knife throwing, disc golf, ropes course and more.

The third day will be spent at the new STEAM Building. Although this will not be like "normal camp" there will still be time together around a campfire, in the cabins and learning new skills.

There will also be time learning about the history and heritage of Jackson's Mill and take part in a fun scavenger hunt.

A few reminders for pods:

- 26 participants total (20 youths and six staff members)
- 3-day experience
- 95% of programming will be outdoors

The health and safety of the youths and communities remains a top priority. Rigorous safety and sanitation protocols are in place to ensure the well-being of all participants. On-site health care professionals and telehealth consultations will be available through WVU Medicine and the Lewis County Health Department. Participants are required to wear masks at all times.

Registration is due by 4 p.m. June 25. There must be 20 members registered for the trip to happen. Registration will be available through your ZSuites account. If you don't have one, visit <https://4h.zsuite.org/> to enroll in 4-H.

Registration will first be opened to those who are aging out of 4-H this summer and those eligible to receive their charting pin.

Detailed COVID-19 safety protocols available upon request

4-H is popping up at the parks

Join 4-H this summer as activities pop-up at various parks throughout the county this summer. You never know where they will be and what fun activity they will have on hand.

Check out the Facebook page at WVU Monongalia County Extension Service to keep updated on what exciting events they have going on.

Area farmers markets offer fresh produce, more

Newsroom@DominionPost.com

One of the best things about summer is the colorful bounty it brings to our tables.

Area farmers markets are officially up and running, stocked with fresh, locally grown produce, pasture-raised meats and eggs, beautiful plants and bouquets, honeys and syrups, and artisan-made breads, desserts and beauty products.

To make the most of what they have to offer, and to reach the largest audience, markets in the area are staggered, and provide a wide variety of products.

To help you take advantage of these locally and regionally produced products, The Dominion Post has put together some info about a few markets in the area.

Morgantown Farmers Market

Held from 8:30 a.m.-noon every Saturday now through mid-November under the pavilion on Spruce Street downtown, the Morgantown Farmers Market features dozens of vendors stocked with everything from handmade yarn, soaps and pet treats to cut flowers, potted succulents, honey, fresh fruit and vegetables, bison, bacon, chicken, eggs, homemade jams and jellies and donuts, cakes, breads and pepperoni rolls.

Availability of items is based on season and demand, and it's always best to arrive closer to opening time to get the best selection.

This year's market is once again operating at full capacity. Pets are allowed, but must be on leashes and well-behaved.

Tokens are available for purchase if you forget to bring cash (small service fee applies) and some vendors do accept card payments.

The market also allows those with SNAP/EBT benefits to swipe their benefit card at the market manager's table to get tokens to spend with food vendors and offers matching dollars for some benefits if spent at the market. It is also a member of the Senior Farmers Market Nutrition Program, and most of the farmers accept FMNP coupons for fresh produce and honey at the market.

You can follow the market on Instagram and Twitter @MorgantownMkt, on Facebook @MorgantownFarmersMarket or go to the website for a list of vendors, or to sign up for the weekly newsletter at www.morgantownfarmersmarket.org/.

Star City Farmers Market

For the late risers, Star City Farmers Market offers the perfect alternative.

Set for 3-8 p.m. Fridays, Star City's market is held at the Edith B. Barill Riverfront Park and Trail along the rail-trail and runs rain or shine.

The market features food and produce vendors, food trucks, artists and artisans and even booths by local entrepreneurs, selling anything from vintage clothing to handmade crafts.

Those interested in participating as a vendor during the Star City Farmers Markets, should contact Star City Hall at 304-599-3550.

Bridgeport Farmers Market

Not free until Sunday? Don't fret. Just a short drive on Interstate 79 South will take you to Bridgeport's offering, held from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. every Sunday through October at Charles Pointe (Exit 124, I-79).

Vendors include local farmers, producers and artisans.

The market features more than 50 vendors (though not always all at the same time), including booths by nonprofit agencies and food trucks.

Brunch is also served every market day and local musicians perform during market hours every week.

Many vendors do accept cards, but it never hurts to have cash on hand.

To check out more information on the Bridgeport Farmers Market, visit its website at <https://bridgeportfarmersmarket.com> or on Facebook @bridgeportfarmersmarketwv.

You can also follow the market on Twitter @BridgeportFM and Instagram @bridgeportfarmersmarket

Preston 4-H ready for summer

BY JENIFFER GRAHAM

JGraham@DominionPost.Com

KINGWOOD — The Preston County 4-H Club will host several programs for members this summer.

West Virginia Extension Agent David Hartley said one of the programs, 4H Adventure days, a two-day program, will be in Eglon, Bruceton Mills and Reedsville.

He said the program will include crafts, STEM activities, as well as recreational activities.

Hartley said the 4H Adventure Days will be held June 23-24, June 30-July 1, July 14-15, and July 21-22.

He said the program will be limited to 30 individuals for each two-day event.

"It will be a great experience to do crafts, science experiments and have some recreational fun," Hartley said.

He said a meal will be provided for 4-H members participating in the program.

A special one-day program will be held for the Clover Buds this summer. The Clover Buds are 4-H members age 5-7. Details about the program will be sent to the 4-H members.

Hartley said a special one-evening event, the Star Program, will be July 20.

"The Star program will allow 4-H members to gain a lot of information about the solar system and astronomy," he said.

Hartley said an in-person Energy Express Program will be offered at West Preston this year for rising first and second graders.

"It's a literacy program that will help students increase their reading skills," he said. "Last year it was virtual, this year it will be in-person."

The program will be held 11:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday June 20 to July 30.

Hartley said every week children participating will be given a book to take home and keep.

For information and updates about the programs, call the West Virginia Extension office in Kingwood at 304-329-1391.

Kingwood set to open pool soon

BY JENIFFER GRAHAM

JGraham@DominionPost.com

KINGWOOD — Kingwood Parks and Recreation will be opening its pool with some changes and a new diving board.

A shortage of lifeguards has led to the canceling of swim classes this year.

"We are still limited due to COVID," Supervisor Kevin Stiles said. "We have limited staffing, mainly life guards. We've advertised, but have had limited response. Anyone interested can call the office at 304-329-0856."

"I'm hoping to open the pool the first week of June," Stiles said.

Stiles said the diving board was bought with donations from the John W. Trenton Benevolent Trust. The irrevocable trust was created under the will of Dr. John W. Trenton to benefit the citizens of Kingwood and Preston County in the maintenance of community recreation facilities, scholarships and similar charitable, scientific, literary and educational purposes.

Stiles said private pool parties can be reserved Wednesday, Friday and Saturday evenings from 6-9 p.m. He said the two-hour rental fee is $150. A $50 deposit is required, and two lifeguards will be provided.

Stiles said general swim will be noon-5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday; lap swim 11 a.m.-noon Tuesday-Saturday and 5-6 p.m. Tuesday-Friday. Night swim will be 6-8 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday. The pool is closed Sunday and Monday.

He said Kingwood Parks and Recreation will also be holding a summer camp June 14-July 23. The camp will be held five days a week.

Thomas Barlow will be director.

"Last year due to COVID, we only had 25 kids per day. This year we'll have 45," Stiles said.

He said he is hopeful the children will be able to go on field trips this year.

"We try to have three to four field trips a year," Stiles said. He said previous field trips have been to Prickett's Fort, Big Bear Water Park, The Carnegie Science Center and the Pittsburgh Zoo.

Stiles said camp costs $85 per week and includes breakfast, lunch, field trips and some use of the pool. He said some parents act as chaperons on the field trips.

Region offers plenty of camping opportunities

BY OLIVIA MURRAY

OMurray@DominionPost.com

Monongalia, Marion, Preston and Taylor counties offer a variety of campgrounds to state residents and visitors.

Preston County

Perhaps one of Preston County's most popular camping areas is Big Bear Lake Camplands in Bruceton Mills. Big Bear Lake's Beaver Creek Village offers several camping options.

Campsites are close to activities at Big Bear Lake, which include mini golf, a game room, tennis, volleyball, baseball and basketball. Big Bear Lake also hosts live music at its community center. Hiking and biking trails are available. Swimming can be done at the 35-acre Big Bear Lake or the smaller Baby Bear Lake.

Big Bear Lake's standard tent sites include electric hookups, fire rings, picnic tables and on-site parking for one vehicle. Rustic tent sites include picnic tables, fire rings and on-site parking for one vehicle, but do not offer water or electric hookups.

Big Bear Lake's standard RV sites are back-in sites that are electric-only. They include picnic tables and fire rings. The location also offers pull-through full hook-up RV sites with electric, sewage and water.

Cabins at Big Bear Lake are one-room and two-room. One-room cabins have one queen size bed and one bunk bed. The one-room cabin can sleep up to four people. Two-room cabins have one queen size bed, two bunk beds and can sleep up to six people. All cabins have electricity, air conditioners, picnic tables, fire rings and charcoal grills. Guest must bring bed linens, kitchen utensils and personal items. The cabins do not have kitchens or bathrooms.

Comfort stations and bathrooms, including showers, are located within walking distance of all overnight accommodations at Big Bear.

A less well-known campground in Preston County is Teter's Campground in Albright.

Teter's offers six full hook-up RV sites, three electric-only RV sites, and plenty of space for tents if campers want to pursue a more rustic route.

Fire places, picnic tables, drinking water, a bathhouse with toilets and hot showers and trash receptacles are available for use by campers. Free Wi-Fi is available to campers if they request the password.

Pets are permitted to join campers at the campground, but campers should call ahead to inform the venue that will be bringing their furry friend along.

Activities in the area include fishing, walking, hiking, kayaking, canoeing, rafting and biking. There is a paintball course nearby. Additionally, Cheat River Outfitters is three minutes away, so campers can venture down to enjoy white water rafting, swimming, rock jumping and rock climbing.

Children under 12 stay for free at Teter's.

Glade Farms Campground is in Bruce-ton Mills. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, tenting and restrooms are currently unavailable.

This campground features 85 full hook-up sites and 20 rustic tent sites as well as more than three pull-through sites.

Fire rings, ice, picnic tables, wood and a vending machine are all available on campground property. The campground also offers a dump station for campers and shaded sites in a rural area for privacy.

The price for the Pierpont Maker Camp is $100 with lunch, a T-shirt, micro-controllers, and other materials provided. Scholarships are available based on need.

Black Bears return with familiar standouts

Newsroom@DominionPost.com

Tremendous experience in collegiate and affiliated baseball is the theme for the three West Virginia Black Bears coaches assigned to first-year manager Jedd Gyorko's coaching staff.

Former Rangers minor league staff member Mike Weatherford was named the Black Bears hitting coach while former Ohio Dominican University coach Jake Hall was named the team's pitching coach. Former WVU shortstop Jimmy Galusky rounds out the team's staff as position coach.

Another Morgantown native won a spot on the team's roster.

Caleb Taylor, a 2019 Morgantown High graduate, completed his freshman season at Potomac State College before securing his spot with the West Virginia Black Bears during their inaugural season in Major League Baseball's Draft League.

The Black Bears' season began last week against the Mahoning Valley Scrapers. While Opening Day was sold out, tickets remain for the remainder of the season, through Aug. 8.

Veteran minor league coach, Weatherford spent time in his professional career with the Texas Rangers, the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Frisco Roughriders.

Weatherford brings his prowess as a hitting coach to West Virginia. A sought-after batting practice pitcher due to his ability to pitch right- and left-handed, Weatherford served as assistant manager for the independent Sugar Land Skeeters in 2020. He continued to offer his coaching services at Denton Guyer High School near Dallas, Texas. Weatherford spent his collegiate days at the University of Oklahoma.

Former All-American relief pitcher, Hale was a standout closer at Ohio State University. He was named to the All-

American 1st-Team by NCBWA following a senior season in which he set a program record for appearances and saves in a single season. At the close of his Buckeye career, he tallied a program-high 29 career saves before becoming a 27th round draft pick of the Arizona Diamondbacks. Hale made 46 career appearances, compiling a 6-5 record with a 2.47 earned run average across two seasons in Arizona's minor league system, the Missoula Osprey, the Yakima Bears and the Visalia Rawhide. Hale began his coaching career in 2015 at the NCAA Division II level as the pitching coach at Ohio Dominican University.

Arthurdale native Galusky rounds out the coaching staff for the 2021 season. A former shortstop for West Virginia University, he was drafted by the Chicago White Sox in 2018 after three seasons as a starter for the Mountaineers.

Galusky returns to Mon County Ballpark after playing one season for the White Sox minor league affiliates. During his professional playing career, he had a .298 batting average in 37 games with 16 runs scored.

At West Virginia, Galusky played in 171 games between 2016-18 and was named to the All-Big 12 Honorable Mention Team twice in 2016 and 2017.
